Global Overview

Annual Global In-App Purchase Revenue in Mobile Games

In 2023, global IAP revenue from mobile games reached $76.7 billion, showing a 2% year-on-year decline. This decline was less steep compared to 2022, but still 22% higher than the revenue recorded in 2019.

For 2024, it is anticipated that global mobile game revenue will rebound to $78 billion. By 2028, revenue is expected to surpass $100 billion, with an average annual growth rate of approximately 6.8%.

Explanation on Revenue Statistics:

The data provided by Sensor Tower represents estimated values of in-app purchases (IAP) from the App Store and Google Play. This data does not include revenue from advertising, income from third-party Android markets, or direct payments generated from manufacturer websites and other payment channels. Unless explicitly stated as net income, these figures represent total revenue (i.e., revenue before platform fees are deducted).

Annual Global Trends in Mobile Game IAP Revenue

In the US and Chinese Markets, IAP Revenue in 2023 is Stabilising

The United States remains the largest market for mobile games, generating $22.2 billion in revenue in 2023, in line with 2022 and 38% higher than 2019. It is expected that mobile game revenue in the US will steadily increase from 2024 to 2028, with a potential reach of $33.5 billion by 2028.

In the Chinese iOS mobile game market, IAP revenue also remained stable, reaching $15.1 billion in 2022.

In 2023, revenue in the Japanese and South Korean markets saw declines. The Japanese market decreased by 13% to $12.5 billion, while the South Korean market decreased by 7% to $4.8 billion.

Explanation on Revenue Statistics:

Global Trends in IAP Revenue by Market

Casual and Hybrid-Casual Games Continue To See Growth

With the popularity of casual games such as MONOPOLY GO! and Eggy Party, along with the growth of hybrid games like Survivor!.io, spend in casual gaming has been increasing annually. Meanwhile, revenue share for mid-core to hardcore games has been decreasing.

In 2023, revenue from casual games grew by 8% to $28.6 billion, accounting for 38% of total global mobile game revenue.

Notably, the growth trajectory of hybrid games has been remarkable, with revenue in this category increasing by 30% to surpass $2.1 billion in 2023.

Key Highlights

- In 2023, global IAP revenue for mobile games reached $76.7 billion, a 2% decrease compared to the 22, however representing a 22% increase from 2019. It is projected that global mobile game revenue will rebound to $78 billion in 2024, with forecasts suggesting revenue could surpass $100 billion by 2028.
- Revenue from casual games continued to grow annually, with revenue from casual games increasing by 8% to $28.6 billion, accounting for 38% of global mobile game revenue. Hybrid-casual mobile games saw a revenue increase of 30% to $2.1 billion. Conversely, revenue from mid-core and hardcore mobile games continues to decline.
- RPG and strategy games remained the highest revenue-generating genres in mobile gaming in 2023, with revenues of $20 billion and $14.8 billion, respectively. However, both genres experienced declines as the pandemic-driven stay-at-home economy boost gradually fades.
- Board and Puzzle mobile games, highlighted by titles like "MONOPOLY GO!" and "Royal Match," excelled in the casual gaming sector, with revenue growth of 18% and 10% respectively, each reaching $10 billion.
